

Wall Street Blockchain Alliance Adds Voyager as Newest Corporate Member

New York, New York (May 22, 2019) – The Wall Street Blockchain Alliance (WSBA), an industry leading non-profit trade association with a mission to guide and promote comprehensive adoption of blockchain technology and cryptoassets across global markets, is pleased to welcome Voyager to the family of WSBA corporate members.

Voyager is a crypto brokerage platform serving both retail and institutional investors. In addition to enterprise technology that provides businesses with a crypto trading offering, the company also offers a simple-to-use iOS application that allows commission-free trading of 18 of the largest and most liquid crypto assets. It enables this functionality through the use of proprietary smart order routing technology and direct connectivity to multiple exchanges and market makers. The application also allows customers to practice self-custody through the firm's recent acquisition of blockchain service provider and universal wallet Ethos.io. In the future, Voyager will be introducing cost basis and tax analysis services.

Chairman of the WSBA Ron Quaranta commented: "We are very privileged to welcome Voyager to the WSBA. The executive team, led by CEO Steve Ehrlich, consists of highly-experienced individuals with proven track records of delivering first-class trading and execution services to the financial sector. They have built a set of highly innovative yet easy to use tools and applications designed to replicate this success in the cryptoasset industry. We look forward to working with them towards our mutual goal of driving comprehensive, yet responsible, adoption of these technologies and asset classes across global markets."

CEO of Voyager Steve Ehrlich commented: "Our partnership with the WSBA is an important step towards our shared goal of promoting the adoption of blockchain and crypto assets across traditional financial markets. We look forward to working with regulators, policymakers and fellow WSBA members to build sustainable solutions that push the market forward."
