Wall Street Blockchain Alliance Adds Blockchain Intelligence Group as Corporate Member

Search and Big Data Analytics Innovator Focuses on Blockchain Data Visibility and Risk Assessment for Compliance and Law Enforcement

New York, New York (February 22, 2017) – The Wall Street Blockchain Alliance (WSBA), a 501 (c)(6) non-profit trade association, has announced that Blockchain Intelligence Group (BIG) has joined the organization as its newest corporate member.

BIG’s proprietary Blockbits, BitRank and Qlue products provide real-time search, data analytics and risk assessment for blockchain-based data and assets, such as bitcoin and other cryptocurrency transactions, providing essential tools for implementing compliance procedures and for detecting potential illegal activity.

Ron Quaranta, Chairman and Founder, WSBA states: “The WSBA is very pleased to have Blockchain Intelligence Group join the family of WSBA Corporate members. With BIG’s strong suite of products and deep domain expertise, their contribution and thought leadership will be invaluable to WSBA members, as well as the wider blockchain universe. Their command of complex analytics aligns well with our recently launched Blockchain Assets Working Group, and I am looking forward to some amazing scholarship in the near future.”

Lance Morginn, CEO of BIG, adds: “We are thrilled to become members of the Wall Street Blockchain Alliance. Big data analytics stands to substantially improve business conducted via blockchains and cryptocurrencies, as they become increasingly utilized within the financial community. The opportunity to work with other members and partners of the WSBA will help expedite innovation and collaboration.”
